

"Eureka Springs - A Top 25 Arts Destination!"

-- American Style magazine

Eureka Springs is one of the most celebrated destinations in the central United States for the arts and cultural heritage traveler and is recognized by major organizations across the country. It has been designated by the National Trust for Historic Preservation as one of America's "Dozen Distinctive Destinations;" and selected as an America in Bloom national awards winner. For the past two years, American Style magazine named Eureka Springs as a "Top Twenty-five Arts Destination." We have been described in every edition of Jim Villani's book, The 100 Best Small Art Towns in America. In addition to being a Preserve America community, Eureka Springs is listed as nationally significant on the National Register of Historic Places.

A destination of choice for artists since the 1800s, Eureka Springs is currently home to over two hundred working artists and over twenty-five art galleries. While in town, be sure to drop in at The Art Colony on North Main Street where you will find artists working in their studios and displaying their creations in a vibrant setting of outdoor sculpture and murals. You will find that the galleries of Eureka Springs are a joy to shop for the creative outpourings from over 1,900 artists of local, national and international note. Iron masks to raku pottery, smoke drawings, oil paintings, fine crafts, etchings, marble and bronze sculptures, exotic fantasy art, Native American art, fine glass -- the list goes on and on.

The Eureka Springs Historical Museum features an extensive collection of the work of previous generations of local artists of note as well as local history. Not all of Eureka Springs' fine art is in galleries or museums. A growing body of public art expresses the essence of our community.

A parking lot wall adjacent to North Main Street showcases the work of 27 regional painters at The ARtery, an evolving outdoor art gallery of architectural scale work. Adjacent to The ARtery is the recently restored Centennial Mural -- a wonderful expression of both the historical and artistic past of Eureka Springs.

Also of both historical and literary note, our Carnegie Public Library has been a community hub since 1912. The Library welcome visitors to browse through their collection of historic photos or check email on one of their computers or use their WiFi connection.

Eureka Springs celebrates our rich artistic heritage every spring during the May Festival of the Arts. The entire month is dedicated to all the arts. Theatre, performing arts, large and intimate art exhibitions, lively Yard Art contest, Sculptures in the Springs, indoor and outdoor concerts, poetry readings, Books in Bloom book fair in a lovely garden setting, the always interesting ARtrageous Parade, and the annual White Street Studio Walk -- you are invited to join the locals in celebrating the art they love!

For those who wish to expand their own personal creative art expression, the Eureka Springs School of the Arts offers a variety of art workshops for adults and children in three sessions each year. Other cultural experiences during the year include the Africa in the Ozarks and the annual Native American Pow-Wow at Turpentine Creek Wildlife Refuge. Innumerable classes and workshops are offered by artists and instructors throughout the year including flute-making, drumming, sacred dance, culinary classes and more.

The annual Arts Eye View Studio Tour each fall offers visitors near and far an invite into the homes and studios of local artists and fine crafts persons
