

Left to right: Carol Dickie, Parker Bottoms, watermedia;
 Steven Foster, Waterfall Cobb Cave, photograph;
 Betty Johnson, Carrol County Scene, original oil

Left to right: Tania Knudsen, Be Inspired, acrylic;
 Mike Butler, Barn in Fog, watercolor - limited edition print;
 Dee Landerman New Delhi Cafe, giclee

As diverse as the picturesque Ozarks Mountains countryside itself, with its many hills, valleys, beautiful rivers, lakes, springs, caves, and forests, the artists who have been drawn to this area comprise a large and varied group.

As early as the 1800s, artists have been drawn to our area of the Ozarks, often lured by the stories and legends of healing, rejuvenation, and creativity. And, undoubtedly attracted to the unique beauty found in no other area.

Ozarks Scenes

On these pages we have compiled a showcase of current local artists and their 'Ozarks Scenes'.

A few are new to Arkansas and some are native Eurekaans; most do not claim Ozarks landscapes as their primary work. We hope you enjoy our picks.

You can discover more Ozarks scenes by visiting many of the Eureka Springs galleries, including: Eureka Fine Art Co, Eureka Thyme, Eureka Art, Quicksilver, Studio 62, Serendipity at the Crescent, Keels Creek, and Mitchell's Folly.

Artist Perspectives

Mike Butler, a native Eurekaan and a self-taught artist, uses watercolor as his primary medium. While developing his own technique and style, he was heavily influenced by the German and Dutch countrysides, and the old style art of those countries.

Gerry Toler: "Photography requires that I look closely at the emotions, colors, and textures of this Earth, particularly in the Ozarks, and to share what I find with others."

Kathryn Semolic: "My work is an expression of gratitude for the smallest details of everyday life. I want to share the wonder of connecting to something that may have previously been overlooked or taken for granted."

Winter Feed - Original oil by Barbara Robinson

All the featured artists are members of the Eureka Springs Artists Registry and invite you to explore their work further online at eurekaspringsartists.com.

Left to right: Melanie Myhre, Mysteria, acrylic;
 Gerry Toler, Lake Leatherwood Marina, photograph;
 Cathleen R. Sinclair, Glory Within The Trees, acrylic

Left to right: Kathryn Semolic, Downtown, acrylic on canvas;
 Melodye Purdy, Thornycrown Chapel, photograph;
 Edward C. Robison III, Spring Evening on Buck Mountain, photograph

